

Course Objectives

This course will provide students with the means to assess their person formation and growth to date. It will require them to plan steps of growth that will guide them in making choices either while in seminary or while entering ministry. It will use insights from the Christian spiritual tradition, from psychology in the form of the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator. It will provide a structure for evaluating personal vocational development and sexuality as these bear on preparing for and applying ministry.

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to:

- evaluate their spiritual formation in light of Christian Trinitarian faith
- evaluate their spiritual formation in the light of classic spiritual cultures and “maps” of Christian formation
- evaluate the development of their sense of vocation to Christian ministry
- assess their sexual development in light of vocation to Christian ministry
- assess their personal formation in terms of the Myers Briggs Type Indicator
- test their understanding of communication in a post-modern world

Textbooks and Pre-Course Reading

Diane Schoemperlen’s Our Lady Of The Lost And Found is required. Schoemperlen’s novel will prove to be quite out of the ordinary. A recommended reading list may be found in the CTS library.

Students will complete 1125 pages of reading including the course text and any choices from the recommended reading list. Substitute reading material may be negotiated with the instructor. Students will submit a (minimum) three-page report of each book read. The report will include a brief (one page maximum) analysis of the content of the reading, and an assessment (at least two pages) of the relevance of the material to the student’s present and future formation as discussed in class. The ability to integrate across topics will be a key to success in this report. For Diane Schoemperlen’s book, students will reflect in their report on ways they might engage this author in conversation about faith.

Reading Reports

Students will choose readings that correspond to class topics, and will read as added learning for their assigned papers. Reports of this reading may be handed in at the same time as the papers to which they relate. The wise student will not leave either the reading or the reports until the end of the semester.

Assigned Papers

Paper 1. Personal Formation and my Spirituality (will assess the student's formation, including the categories discussed in class: Please note, a "personal testimony" alone will not fulfill the requirements of this paper.)

Paper 2. Personal Formation and my Vocation (will assess the student's sense of calling to ministry according to class discussions.)

Paper 3. Personal Formation and my Sexuality (will assess personal and ministry-related issues in sexuality according to class discussions)

Paper 4. Personal Formation and my Temperament (will assess the student's present and future development in terms of the Myers Briggs Type Indicator.)

Paper 5. Personal Formation: an Integration (will integrate course material, reading, previous learning and experience, and will offer short-term and long-term plans for future choices based on this integration.)

Due Dates

Paper Format

Seminary papers are to follow the guidelines of A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses and Dissertations, by Kate L. Turabian (6th edition) and/or The Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (Fourth edition). The instructor will indicate where these guidelines may be waived or substituted. Students will identify, on the first or cover page of all assignments, the course name, the instructor's name and their own name (student ID numbers are optional) and their mail box number. Students will refrain from using graphics of any kind in preparing papers. Papers will be double-spaced, no more and no less, whether between lines or between paragraphs. All type will be 12 point.
